Module 2 Relationships

1. PROPORTION

To find out what Jews are we have to separate what we wish to be true from what we can clearly observe.

It doesn't make you an Anti-Semite or a self-hating Jew to state the obvious - there's a disproportionate influence by Jews on human affairs according to their numbers. It's disproportionate if we think nature should be a democracy with representation by population. In that case it definitely does look like a conspiracy - but could any people really be that overwhelmingly cunning and infallible? Is the influence really theirs or even in their hands at all? - Is it off kilter or are we looking at just one side of a natural balance without knowing what's being balanced? Proportion doesn't mean equal.

We'll find as we go on that nature is far more sophisticated and concerned for its citizens than any man-made government or political philosophy. We've got plenty to learn from it because it's the real government of our species, the big picture for humans. Still, even in Democracies it's a tiny portion of the people that serve as representatives and influence the whole population.

Of course we never got to vote on how nature responds or what would end up happening to us... or did we?

2. THE BEGINNING OF EGOISTIC ERA

Anyone who's witnessed what the world's gone through since the 90's senses that we're seeing the end of an Egoistic Era.

Even though egoism is just one side of the force that evolves civilization, it's been the dominant side. But what used to help us advance stopped working for us. Now it's working against us. The more we try for a recovery by attempting to return to outmoded institutions that depend on selfishness to make them run, the more severe and widespread the crisis we bring on in our society.

We know what's ending but we don't know what's beginning. To understand where we are and how we can proceed, we first have to go back to where and when The Egoistic Era began.

All this was initiated in Babylonia by a species-wide, exponential leap of aggressive self-interest. But more importantly, by the direction we chose in response to it. That's what the stories of Abraham and Nimrod are about. You can find them not only in the Five Books of Moses, but also in Christian and Islamic sources as well as European Tales. But if you cross-reference all the versions with archaeological data you won't be able to match up Nimrod and many of the names. The more we try for a with historical figures. That's because the story is a conflation of real and fictional characters and historical figures that first appeared in the Bible, and the Bible speaks by using the interplay between people and places in a metaphorical, pre-scientific language to explain the forces and laws of nature as they are felt in the mind and heart, with names of things instead of numbers to make "equations." That's why biblical language often seems incongruous to us.

The interplay between people and places in the bible is a metaphorical, pre-scientific language used to explain the forces and laws of nature with names of things instead of numbers to make “equations”.

In other words, Biblical writing uses people and places however it's not aimed at total accuracy about individuals or locations but at precise descriptions of the natural forces working through people that create the events. They describe the changing relationships between people.

3. WHAT'S THE BIBLE IS ACTUALLY TELLING US IN ITS'S ACCOUNT ?

It tells us how Human ego shifted from evolving in a slow balanced way to suddenly exploding, causing conflicts in every kind of interaction, polarizing us, making us unwilling to grow together. And how that brought about the rapid emergence of empire in the Fertile Crescent destroying all the small peaceful nations that lived there. The main points in the story are:

The "Nimrod" character:

A symbol for Nimrod's ideology: that we should take the force of expansion at face value and obey its impulse to dominate and separate because it's a law of nature. That it's to my personal benefit with nothing for me to gain by resisting it.

The "Abraham" Character:

A symbol for Abraham's ideology: that the hatred was not appearing in order to separate us but to provide the impetus to choose a more evolved connection, free of its limitation. That rising above it puts us in touch with the general, more comprehensive law of nature that likewise cares for everything without limitation. We could build with it and expand successfully because we'd intrinsically be doing what nature does but on the human level.

Abraham forms a new nation with his followers

Abraham's "family" were people from all those 70 nations and tribes who literally voted with their feet and chose to civilize based on the Abrahamic ideology. That was the only thing that made them a nation, apart from that they had nothing in common, not culture not religion not race. But because they were representatives of all the peoples, they constituted a lifeline for them that would eventually be capable of providing the needed counterbalance.

THEY WERE THE ORIGINAL UNITED NATIONS

They were the representatives of us as a whole. Those nations and that empire have all disappeared. The only nation that survived that crisis and all the ones that followed in its wake is the original United Nations.

The Original United Nations

Abraham formed a new nation out of the people who assembled around him. They were representatives from all those 70 nations and tribes who literally voted with their feet and chose to civilize based on the Abrahamic ideology. That was the only thing that made them a nation since they had nothing in common—not culture, not religion, not race. But because they were representatives of all the peoples, they constituted a lifeline for them that would eventually be capable of providing the needed counterbalance. They were the original United Nations.

The Building and Destruction of the Tower of Babel

A symbol for the explosion of ego, the choice to “civilize” according to it and later the demise of any social structure based purely on the egoistic force.

Suddenly forgetting the common language and 70 different new tongues

A symbol for how the force of expansion is felt in us as the justified rejection of mutual concern. How this weakened and separated each nation and distanced the people in them from one another. I don't want to hear you, I don't have the heart for you.

4. SYNTHESIS 2

Networks in nature

Nature manages population ratios and distributes roles based on what's the best for the whole system.

Jews and humanity

The ideological dynamic for western civilization was laid down with the formation of the original united nations in Babylon.

Synthesis 2

A SINGLE FORCE

We will see that there's a correspondence between the ideologies at the foundation of civilization and the science of the mechanisms in human development - that it's a see-saw effect of a single force that involves everyone and is naturally antagonistic even though what ultimately evolves from it is positive.

What if?

What if the history of our relationship with Jews in the Human network actually follows the template for how nature evolves all its systems?
